

I think it is important for the FCC to understand that citizens enlist in the "Do Not Call" list for a reason - we don't want to receive telemarketing calls - period. I have long contended that if I need a good or service from a siding company - and yes, even a bank - I will pursue the company of my choice. I have the capability to research using the Internet, newspaper, phone book, etc. for a company that will meet my expectations. My telephone should not be used for a cheap form of advertising for companies that choose to use telemarketing. I do not want to receive ANY calls from ANY telemarketing organization.

Thank you!
